On January 11, 2020, Chinese health authorities preliminarily identified more than 40 human infections with novel coronavirus in an outbreak of pneumonia under investigation in Wuhan City, Hubei Province, China. Chinese health authorities subsequently posted the full genome of the so-called “novel coronavirus 2019”, or “2019-nCoV”, in GenBank®, the National Institutes of Health genetic sequence database.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) continues to monitor this outbreak. Early on, many cases reportedly had some link to a large seafood and animal market, suggesting animal-to-human spread. However, a growing number of cases reportedly have not had exposure to animal markets, suggesting limited person-to-person spread is occurring.

Coronaviruses are a large family of viruses, some causing illness in people and others that circulate among animals, including camels, cats, and bats. Rarely, animal coronaviruses can evolve and infect people and then spread between people, as seen with Middle East Respiratory Syndrome and Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome.

There is an ongoing investigation to determine more about this outbreak. This is a rapidly evolving situation. This document may become outdated as situations change.

On February 11, 2020, the World Health Organization announced an official name for the disease that is causing the 2019 novel coronavirus outbreak, COVID-19 and declared it a pandemic outbreak on March 11, 2020.
The Florida Department of Health – Bay County is the lead agency while dealing with the COVID-19 Pandemic and the Bay County Emergency Operations Center (EOC) Staff is designed to support in any way necessary. EOC will be staffed daily.

symptoms usually appear within two to 14 days after exposure to the virus. The "emergency warning signs" for COVID-19 are trouble breathing, persistent pain or pressure in the chest, confusion or inability to arouse, and bluish lips or face.

Update as of April 4, 2020:

- CDC recommends wearing cloth face coverings in public settings where other social distancing measures are difficult to maintain (e.g., grocery stores and pharmacies), especially in areas of significant community-based transmission.
- CDC also advises the use of simple cloth face coverings to slow the spread of the virus and help people who may have the virus and do not know it from transmitting it to others. Cloth face coverings fashioned from household items or made at home from common materials at low cost can be used as an additional, voluntary public health measure.
- Cloth face coverings should not be placed on young children under age 2, anyone who has trouble breathing, or is unconscious, incapacitated or otherwise unable to remove the mask without assistance.
- The cloth face coverings recommended are not surgical masks or N-95 respirators. Those are critical supplies that must continue to be reserved for healthcare workers and other medical first responders, as recommended by current CDC guidance.

The best way to prevent illness is to avoid being exposed to the virus. The Department of Health (DOH) recommends everyday preventive actions to help stop the spread of respiratory diseases, including:

- Avoid close contact with people who are sick by maintaining a 6 foot social distance;
- Stay home when you are sick and avoid contact with persons in poor health;
- Avoid touching your eyes, nose and mouth with unwashed hands;
- Cover your cough or sneeze with a tissue, then disposing of the tissue;
- Wash your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds, especially after going to the bathroom, before eating, after blowing your nose, coughing or sneezing;
- If soap and water are not readily available, use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer with at least 60% alcohol. Always wash hands with soap and water if hands are visibly dirty; and
- Cleaning and disinfecting frequently touched objects and surfaces using a regular household cleaning spray or wipe.
